1	The Johnson College Architectural Drafting and Design Technology Program does a wonderful job preparing students to step into industry positions. Johnson College provides students with the necessary tools needed to progressively learn in the industry. Their graduates are well rounded, efficient, and have an eagerness to develop their skills.	10/22/2018 2:01 PM
2	Overall we are pleased with the students level of preparedness.	10/18/2018 3:04 PM
3	For the roll they ar being hired for, they are very well rounded entry level employees. In my opinon they have all the skills needed for entry level employment, the rest would be learned only with on the job experience.	10/18/2018 9:29 AM

5	I think Johnson College has a good diesel program that provides a good foundation for students entering the work force. I think the students receive good knowledge of various truck systems as well as rebuild practices. I feel there could be improvements made in their level of knowledge and understanding of complete truck repairs and after-treatment technology on the newer vehicles. We have noticed most students have a good grasp on engine technology but lack in repair knowledge of items like wheel ends, brake system repairs, after-treatment diagnosis, etc.	10/18/2018 6:23 AM

1	Rob only works for our department on weekends as a PTA as hired in building as part of the restorative nursing program full-time. Always willing to work to do additional hours; very reliable.	11/13/2018 3:17 PM
2	Solicit manufacturers for the skills they need to determine the best plan forward regarding what is taught. Think popular vote versus electoral college concept. Maybe Tobyhanna is the big city. :) and maybe the small fish should have a big say also.	10/23/2018 7:59 PM
3	I look forward to working with Johnson College in the near future.	10/23/2018 1:28 PM
4	General body language, facial expression and eye contact are important communication skills. Do not overlook non-verbal communication techniques.	10/22/2018 9:36 AM
5	Currently UPS Freight does not employ any Johnson College graduates for me to rate.	10/21/2018 7:53 PM
6	I cant help with this survey. You would need to contact Pexco/Sandvik HR department directly.	10/18/2018 5:55 PM
7	Please stress the need for punctuality and attendance. We have seen issues with this across the board from graduates, not just from Johnson. Also, I would like to see logical thinking skills promoted so that students get in the habit of thinking through how and why a given system works or should work in order to diagnose why it's not working. I feel this is better than memorized knowledge because it allows a tech to look at a system as a whole to determine a root cause of failure instead of simply looking for the broken component.	10/18/2018 6:52 AM
8	Many of the answers are based on new grads and as technologists gain experience and are in the field for many years they will improve their critical thinking skills, be better at multitasking, etc. I would comment that the tech's that started the program later in life do well	10/18/2018 6:47 AM
9	Having 5 graduates on our team this evaluation was difficult, because 1 individual is performing exemplary! My scores were based on the majority of the over 10 hires we have hired, and not a reflection on the high performing individual. Please take this into consideration with future surveys. Respectfully	10/17/2018 11:14 AM
10	Electronic diagnostics	10/16/2018 8:17 PM

Q108 Are there any other Johnson College graduates, who graduated from a different program area, that you employ in your company?

1	We also have high hopes for the trades overall and there will be a comeback. Excited to see what AMET begins to produce student wise also. For us Johnson College is one of the most solid schools to prepare students. We have lost a few for which we would have hoped to keep.	10/23/2018 8:02 PM
2	They have crossed over well in relation to our field	10/17/2018 11:16 AM
