

Literature and Other Resources on Clinical Teaching and Learning

The APTA has a variety of resources related to clinical education; please visit <http://www.apta.org/Educators/Clinical/> for information on site development, clinical education resources, education networking and regulations related to students.

In addition, below is recommended literature on clinical teaching and learning. Many are available for free to APTA members and members of the clinical education section.

- Morren K, Gordon S, Sawyer B. The relationship between clinical instructor characteristics and student perceptions of clinical instructor effectiveness. Journal of Physical Therapy Education. December 2008; 22(3):52-63.
- Page C, Ross I. Instructional strategies utilized by physical therapist clinical instructors: an exploratory study. Journal of Physical Therapy Education. April 2004; 18(1):43-49.
- Kelly S. The exemplary clinical instructor: a qualitative case study. Journal of Physical Therapy Education. April 2007; 21(1):63-69.
- Buccieri K, Pivko S, Olzenak D. Development of an Expert Clinical Instructor: A Theoretical Model for Clinical Teaching in Physical Therapy. Journal of Physical Therapy Education. 2013 Winter 2013;27(1):48-57.
- Wetherbee E, Nordrum J, Giles S. Effective teaching behaviors of APTA-credentialed versus noncredentialed clinical instructors. Journal of Physical Therapy Education. April 2008; 22(1):65-74.
- Jette D, Nelson L, Palaima M, Wetherbee E. How Do We Improve Quality in Clinical Education? Examination of Structures, Processes, and Outcomes. Journal of Physical Therapy Education. 2014; 28(Supp 1):6-12.
- Sass K, Frank L, Rosenbaum M, et al. Physical therapy clinical educators' perspectives on students achieving entry-level clinical performance. Journal of Physical Therapy Education. October 2011; 25(3):46-59.
- Plack M. The learning triad: potential barriers and supports to learning in the physical therapy clinical environment. Journal of Physical Therapy Education. December 2008;22(3):7-18.
- Sabus C. The effects of modeling evidence-based practice during the clinical internship. Journal of Physical Therapy Education. December 2008; 22(3):74-84.